CAMPUS

The Fort Hays State debate team competed in the Ozark Classic Debate Tournament at Missouri Southern State College, Joplin, Mo., last Friday through Sunday. The freshman team of David Klein, Hays freshman, and Martin Horn, Goodland freshman, placed second by defeating two Kansas State University teams before losing to KSU in the final round. Klein also received the third-place speaker award. Eighteen schools from five states competed. The next competition will be at the Phi Kappa Delta convention and tournament in San Antonio, Texas, March 3-5.

The "Freedom from Smoking" clinic meets at 7 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays in the Memorial Union Sunflower Theater.

Job placement interviews with the Kansas Department of Revenue on Wednesday and Excel Corporation Thursday have been cancelled.

The Abilene Area Retired Teachers Association will be providing a scholarship to a graduate of a Dickinson County high school. For more information, call 628-5848 or come to Rarick 245.

KFHS-TV and the Memorial Union Activities Board are presenting two debates from presidential candidates Thursday and Friday. The Democratic candidates — Bruce Babbitt, Michael Dukakis, Richard Gephardt, Albert Gore, Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon — will debate on Thursday night. The Republican candidates — George Bush, Robert Dole, Pete duPont, Jack Kemp and Pat Robertson — will debate Friday.

The debates are co-sponsored nationally by the College Satellite Network, the National Association of Campus Activities, Toyota and Pepsi-Cola.

Both debates can be seen from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Memorial Union Limestone Lounge.

Students planning to enroll in directed teaching in the fall semester must have their application for directed teaching filed by March 1.

Applications for teaching are available in the Teacher Education Advising and Certification Office in Rarick 245.

Cole chosen as new librarian

By KEVIN KRIER
Editor in chief

Although Fort Hays State conducted a nationwide search for the new director of Forsyth Library, President Edward Hammond didn't have to look far for the person he wanted to fill the vacancy.

Karen Cole, librarian and instructor of library science, was named the new director at a press conference Friday morning in the library.

Hammond, in making his first major appointment since becoming president last June, said he was looking for three qualities in the new director.

"The candidate had to have exceptional leadership skills, had to be computer literate and a good manager of people," Hammond said. "Karen was the most successful candidate throughout the search, and she reaffirmed my belief that we have quality people within the university to take over new positions."

Cole, who assumed her new role immediately after the press conference Friday morning, said she was looking forward to her new position.

"I'm excited about the possibilities. We are moving into an era of great change, and I'm looking forward to the challenge," Cole said. "Our mission at the library is on target with Dr. Hammond's, and I intend to continue to keep it that way."

James Murphy, vice president for Academic Affairs, received the list of final candidates from Gerry Cox, chairman of the search committee, two weeks ago. He and Hammond then made the final decision.

The finalists were narrowed to two as Cole and a candidate who had the same position as library director at an institution twice the size as FHSU were in the running.

"In the end, we felt that Mrs. Cole had the qualities we were looking for, including knowledge of library operations, budgets, personnel, computers and leadership," Murphy said. "Karen originally came to us as the result of a federal grant we received to upgrade and computerize our library operation and the total computer information system."

"She has guided the library project for a year and a half and has done a wonderful job. We think we have selected the best person available as our new director."

Hammond said Cole was picked in part because of her leadership role.

"The leadership role she has displayed in developing an automated library system will be to our benefit as we electrify our university," Hammond said. "The library director's position is one of the key academic posts on this campus."

Cole has been on the FHSU faculty since August 1986. She has a bachelor's degree in English from FHSU and a master of library science degree from Emporia State University. She has completed additional graduate work at Wichita State University.

Before joining the FHSU faculty, Cole taught and worked as a librarian in Solomon, Wichita, Hutchinson and the Buhler school systems.

Country music group possibility; Alabama considered for spring concert

Alabama may be back in Hays, according to I.B. Dent, director of student activities.

Dent said in an interview Thursday that the committee received an offer from the country group Alabama.

"Alabama is the best choice possible when you look at the financial side of it," Dent said.

According to Dent and Lance DeMond, concert committee chairman, the concert would be a three-group show.

Alabama would bring in two groups with them. Possible acts that would appear are Eddy Raven, Ricky Van Shelton, or Sawyer Brown.

Alabama won the Favorite Country Group Award at the Fifteenth Annual American Music Awards and has three albums, "Just Us," "Greatest Hits" and "The Touch," on Billboard's Top Country Albums list. They also have a hit single, "Face to Face," at No. 5 on Billboard's Hot Country Singles chart.

Van Shelton also has an album on Billboard's chart. His hit single, "Life Turned Her That Way," is at No. 5.

Raven, another country act being considered, introduced his single, "I'm Gonna Get You," at No. 57 last week on Billboard's Hot Country Singles Chart.

Alabama performed at FHSU in the spring of 1986, along with the Charlie Daniels Band.

Alabama was not listed on the survey conducted by the Memorial Union Activities Board Concert Committee two weeks ago.

The concert committee has counted the surveys handed out to college and high school students.

Three hundred surveys to college students and another three hundred to high school students were passed out two weeks ago.

In the college category, the rock music group Whitesnake topped out the list, the high school category. Kiss placed first.

College students picked Chicago and Hank Williams Jr. as their second and third choices, while Whitesnake and Tesla placed second and third in the high school category.

Enrollment figures up; Student count at 5,026

By KEVIN KRIER
Editor in chief

Fort Hays State has climbed above the 5,000 mark.

Final enrollment figures for the spring semester were released yesterday afternoon and an increase of 60 students from last spring's head count pushed the final figure to 5,026.

During the spring semester of 1987, 4,966 students enrolled at the university.

Needless to say, Fort Hays State University President Edward Hammond was ecstatic with the jump.

"This is a major increase. Last fall we declined between 200-300 students from the fall enrollment figures of 1986," Hammond said. "Normally, you would expect the fall and spring semester enrollment counts to be similar. But, this indicates what a great job the faculty and staff did on retention."

Off-campus enrollment increased by 119 students, while on-campus enrollments decreased by 59 students.

The fulltime equivalency figure decreased from last spring by 61 students. According to Friday's report, 3,637 undergraduates and 1,389 graduate students are currently enrolled at the university.

Last year those totals were 3,608 and 1,268.

James Petree, dean of continuing education, said it can be difficult to predict increases and decreases in enrollment.

"We anticipated we would do as well as last spring. It's a benchmark we hope to achieve each semester," Petree said. "The off campus program is cyclical in nature. It is very difficult to predict because there are so many variables involved."

Although the head count increased, the university noticed a decline in the number of credit hours for the semester.

The 5,026 students currently enrolled are taking 54,165 credit hours — a decrease of 967 credit hours from last spring's enrollment. The FTE dropped to 3,916 for the spring semester from last spring's figure of 3,977.

SGA considers budget proposal

By DAVID BURKE
Managing Editor

The Student Government Association was presented with a proposed budget for the Student Health Center — including options with a proposed 75 cent credit hour increase — at its Thursday night meeting.

The total operating income for student health, including a proposed 75 cent increase for fiscal year 1989, would be $223,260.

With a 50 cent increase, the budget would be $196,260 for FY 89.

Student fees for student health have been $1.25 for the past five years.

According to a client contact log, student health has had a constant increase in the number of students seen, despite a wavering on-campus enrollment.

Kathy Douglas, student health director, will speak to the SGA Thursday night on behalf of the increase.

Dana Forsythe, SGA vice president, announced that three seats were open on SGA. Two general studies seats and one humanities seat are open.

The general studies openings are created from Forsythe's moving from that seat to the vice president position; and excessive absences from Lola Winder.

Excessive absences from humanities senator Eric Krug also caused a vacancy.

Senators are allowed three absences per semester or five per year, Forsythe said.

An expense account for lobbying in Washington, D.C., by SGA President Kevin Amack, treasurer Davi Anne Brewer and Forsythe, was approved.

A proposed 1988-89 budget for SGA was also passed.

Funds were also approved for Epsilon Pi Tau. The industrial education honorary requested $550 to attend a convention in Norfolk, Va. The group will also be competing in a nationwide problem-solving competition.

Appropriations money was Geology Club and the Sociology Club.

The Geology Club is requesting $272.12 to attend a meeting of the Geological Club of America in Lawrence.

The Sociology Club is requesting $199.78 to attend the Midwest Sociology Club meeting in Minneapolis.

Both will be up for approval at Thursday's meeting.

Cole best choice for job

A few weeks ago, we challenged the yet-to-be-named director of Forsyth Library to meet the challenges and tribulations faced by the poor condition of the library.

Now, that person has been selected.

Karen Cole seems to be a logical choice for the position. She was the only candidate familiar with the FHSU computer system and the inner workings of Forsyth.

The challenges now lie ahead for Cole. She must take the helm of the library system, and guide it through some treacherous waters.

The library is still in poor shape in terms of reference materials.

A change is not needed to be made; a change must be made.

The change will not be instantaneous, but it can be still be made, and Cole can do it.

We wish her luck.

Letters

Love's answers found in Bible

To the Editor,

This letter deals with a concern inspired by the article in the Leader's Feb. 11 issue titled "Mystery of Love Examined."

I found it interesting that Webster's dictionary would be used as a reference to describe love. It seems to me a much more solid reference is available. After all, Webster's has been with us for 163 years, whereas the Bible has endured for 1,803 years and parts of it up to 3,394 years. No book I know of is more jam-packed with descriptions of love.

Solomon, in Song of Songs, describes love as beautiful and pleasing. He states that many waters cannot quench love. Solomon acknowledges the stages of "falling in love": girl meets guy, love, relationship develops, and he even acknowledges sexual passion. But instead of letting it drag on to rejection he warns us: "...I charge you: Do not arouse or awaken love until it so desires." (SS 8:4). We have all experienced love to some degree, and if we know the yearnings to express our love physically are not easily quenched. Solomon knew it, and I think we all recognize his warning for what it is.

A man named Jesus said, "Greater love has no one than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." (Jn 15:13) Now, we've just passed Valentine's Day, which is a famous day for tokens of love. Let us reflect, and let us ask ourselves what we would lay down for that person we love. Would we go so far as to set aside our sexual passions, much less our lives?

And let us remember the wisdom in 1 Cor. 13. Paul tells us that no matter what we have, no matter what we do, without love we are nothing. A relationship without love is nothing.

So what is love? Again, in 1 Cor. 13: love rejoices in truth, it protects and trusts. It hopes and always perseveres. Love never fails.

If you want to learn more on the subject, pick up the book, open your heart, and read.

Love not always sexual passion

Dear Editor,

I would like to direct my comments to the two articles written by Eric Hodson last Thursday regarding love.

To begin with, I especially enjoyed the definitions of love that were given by students surveyed in the article "Students Define Love..." Different descriptions of love were given, yet each definition had one thing in common - love is a good feeling.

However, I was deeply disappointed in his column, "Mystery of Love Examined." The last half of it dealt with sexual passion and rejection. What does love have to do with those two topics? I, too, did some research on the topic of love (straight from its maker). Here is what I found.

"Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy. It does not boast. It is not proud. It is not rude. It is not self-seeking. It is not easily angered..." 1 Cor. 13:4-5.

Why give such a negative perspective to such a beautiful word? Not all relationships will end up as "man and wife," but not all are meant to. Love can build long-lasting friendships if nothing else; that is, if you let it.

When examining an issue such as love, you must be more careful. Thank goodness not everyone sees love as something that leads to a relationship which leads to trouble and is kept alive only by sexual passion, but in the end leads to rejection.

CPR requirement for students can save lives of loved ones

Nearly one million people will die this year from cardiovascular disease.

Two-thirds will die before they reach the hospital.

The next victim may be a loved one, or it might be you.

If cardiopulmonary resuscitation is performed properly and early enough, between 100,000 and 200,000 lives can be saved each year.

That is why CPR is so important.

That is why CPR should be required at Fort Hays State.

Since this is the month that President Edward Hammond is addressing the re-organization of FHSU, I think he should take a look at changing some curriculum requirements as well.

Namely, changing the four-hour, physical-education requirement to three hours of electives and CPR.

I am currently enrolled in the course and have found it informative, not only in CPR, but also in first aid for choking victims, which includes the Heimlich maneuver.

The class is not time consuming and is very inexpensive ($2 for the Heartsaver Manual). The course meets once a week for an hour and a half.

I hope I never have to use CPR, but it is a first aid tool that I want to know if a crisis develops.

I have a first hand experience with such a crisis.

While moving flood-irrigation pipe in a milo field, my dad had a heart attack. No one at the scene knew CPR.

He was lucky and survived. Most do not.

The course also outlines some tips in taking better care of yourself and your heart.

I found out that heart disease does not discriminate due to age. My dad was 42 when he had his heart attack. My grandfather died of a heart attack at the age of 60. It was his fourth.

There are other advantages to knowing CPR besides aiding cardiovascular disease victims. Sudden death can also occur because of drowning, suffocation, electrocution, drug overdose and automobile accidents.

First aid for choking is equally important.

Approximately 3,000 people die each year from choking.

Another important reason for knowing CPR is the time factor that is crucial when sudden death is involved.

In most sudden death cases, brain damage begins after four minutes. Brain death is certain after 10 minutes.

How long do you suppose it would take an ambulance to reach your residence in an emergency situation?

Five minutes? Ten minutes?

When CPR is started within four minutes, the victim's chances of leaving the hospital alive are four times greater.

I encourage all students to take CPR, whether it is required or not.

If you think that CPR should be required, I encourage you to join me in writing President Hammond.

I know he would be very receptive to your comments. I received a letter from him a couple of weeks ago, which addressed the topic of what I would change at FHSU.

I was sad to see a commercial that said "More people know how to jump-start a car than know how to jump-start a life."

I decided to do something about that. I hope you will too.

Spring training opens today; new hopes abound for teams

Next year has arrived for millions of people across the country.

That's right. Today marks the official opening of spring training. It's that magical time of the year when everybody is filled with the hopes and dreams that this just might be the year for their favorite baseball team.

In no other sport do enthusiasts count down the days until spring camp opens. For many people, the countdown is the only way they make it through the long, winter months.

Baseball is truly the national pastime. Rookie phenoms, aged veterans and venerable superstars converge on Florida and Arizona in hopes of putting together a great year and making it to the World Series.

Every year there seems to be a surprise team that wins a divisional title. The age of one dominant team is clearly over and the age of parity has arrived. For fans of the Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox, there is always the eternal dream that this could be the year they've waited so long for.

Records are made to be broken, and at least one or two usually fall by the wayside during the course of a season. New faces pop up in different places and trade rumors fly during the rite of spring.

But, one thing always remains the same. Baseball gets better and better each year and attendance records are smashed at the major league ballparks.

So, without further ado, here's a capsule look at the early favorites in each division.

American League East
Considered by many to be the toughest division in baseball, this race will be a three-team affair.

Toronto, New York and Milwaukee will be the combatants, with the Blue Jays getting a slight edge over the Yankees. Yes, Billy Martin won't make a big difference. In fact, odds are he won't last the season.

Boston and Detroit don't have the horses, while Cleveland and Baltimore must wait 'til next year.

American League West
Kansas City and Oakland appear to have the upper hand in this race with key off-season acquisitions.

The Royals finally found a shortstop in Kurt Stillwell and added a proven veteran in lefty Floyd Bannister.

Oakland added Dave Parker and Don Baylor to an already potent offense, but their pitching is still shaky.

Give an edge to the Royals for experience. The other five teams in the division can battle for third, with the Twins getting a slight edge over Seattle.

National League East

New York is head and shoulders above the crowd in this division and just might run away from the field. Philadelphia and Montreal could be teams to watch, but I expect the Cardinals will fall to fourth with the loss of power-hitter Jack Clark.

Chicago and Pittsburgh will once again fight it out for the cellar.

National League West

Another scramble is set for this divisional race with any one of four teams having a legitimate shot at the title.

This one goes down to the last weekend of the season with Cincinnati getting the edge over San Francisco, Houston and Los Angeles.

Former Royal Danny Jackson may become a 20-game winner for the Reds and carry them to the divisional flag.

San Diego and Atlanta will be consigned to the bottom of the heap.

The World Series will come down to a seventh game between Cincinnati and Kansas City, and Jackson will haunt his former teammates with a masterful shutout, giving the Reds a world championship.

But, all that is in the future. For now, let's just sit back and enjoy the fun. Baseball is back!

Mortuary scene puts student in jeopardy

There is a reverent hush about the room. The fragrance of fresh-cut flowers fills the air.

Apprehensive in this unfamiliar situation, children cling to their mother's side. Cautiously, the children sneak a look at the loved one, lying so still in front of them.

Sitting a respectful distance from the loved one, family and friends talk quietly.

"Doesn't she look peaceful?"
"Who sent the pink flowers?"
"Her color is so natural."

And then family members take one last glance at the loved one, lying serenely, surrounded by flowers.

"Call us if you need anything," they say to the spouse as they leave.

This would be a touching scene at any mortuary. But, it isn't, because:

The loved one is in her living room on a sofa slightly larger than a coffin.

The loved one is covered by a multi-colored, ratty old afghan, instead of white silk.

Denied her request for her red T-shirt and favorite blue jeans, the loved one is wearing navy blue sweats.

The loved one is surrounded by small, cheerful, non-circular flower arrangements.

Instead of a macabre organ melody, the loved one hears the familiar "Jeopardy!" theme and Alex Trebek reminding everyone that it's time to play double jeopardy.

Hovering over the loved one is a playful, helium balloon that distinctly says, "Get Well Soon." And, when the phone rings, it's for the loved one.

Wait a minute -- that's me! I'm not dead.

I am lying on the couch, in my living room, recovering from surgery.

Family and friends insist that I rest, and they eagerly take care of everything so that I can, especially Mark, my husband.

Mark fluffs my pillow and adjusts the window shade to allow just the right amount of light and warmth into the room.

He keeps cold, nourishing liquids at my fingertips. He fixes nutritious meals, entertains visitors, and buys pickled okra by the gallon for me.

He cleans the house and does the shopping. He gets the mail, changes the TV channels and pays the bills.

He brings me a good book, gives current weather reports and waters the plants.

He listens to me whine and reminds me to take my pain medication.

That's how it happened. I took the pain medicine and some of my family stopped by to see how I was doing. The goofy mortuary scenario was a result of the pain medication.

Whew, what a relief. Now I'm just too spaced out to ask the final question.

My recovery has been restful and peaceful, thanks to Mark, and my family and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. David Walz prepare to walk back down the aisle after their wedding ceremony at The Mall on Valentine's Day. Approximately 1,000 people watched as the two were pronounced man and wife after winning The Mall's Bridal Fair. Edna Frenzl, manager of the Dwyers Hallmark Cards (left), and Donna Kolste (right), were forced to stand on a ladder in order to see the ceremony.

Couple exchange vows in Mall Ceremony has 1,000 guests

By MARVEL BALL
Staff Writer

"I now pronounce you man and wife."

Approximately 1,000 guests witnessed the vows of Dian Kishner and David Walz Feb. 14 at The Mall's Bridal Fair finale.

The guests ranged from couples looking for wedding ideas to others who were just curious.

Dale Brungardt and Beth Billinger, Victoria, attended to look at all the wedding displays.

"I don't think I would want to do it this way, even if it was free," Brungardt said.

Other comments were that it was really neat and different.

"I think it's kind of exciting," Bill Jacobs, Stone Post Buckles N Stuff owner, said.

"I would love to see the faces of those who don't know what's going on," Ruth Templeton, Kuhn's employee, said.

And some did come to The Mall just to shop.

Faye Gobel, Phillipsburg, was among those shoppers.

"I thought this was a showcase or fashion show, but when I found out it was a real wedding - this is hilarious - I walked in on someone's wedding."

Some thought that the money that was spent on this particular couple and event should have been used to help the needy and the homeless or given to charitable organizations.

Others thought like it was too much of a public display.

The wedding altar was decorated with a pink backdrop, palm trees and brass candleabras.

The Mall employees helped with the many hours of decorating.

Decorating the wedding area took from 3:30 p.m. to midnight Saturday and from 4:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

A bag full of pink, white and red heart balloons and confetti were dropped on the bride and groom as they walked down the aisle. A surprise from her family.

"I think it turned out well," Mike Ewert, Mall maintenance, said.

"When we started putting things together, I wondered, it looked pretty rough."

Ewert thought the idea was okay.

"Although I'm Catholic, I can still try anything once," he said.

"Especially for a free trip to the Bahamas," Craig Staab, Mall employee, said.

The wedding area was roped off for the immediate family guests and an aisle was structured towards the main entrance of The Mall, where the precessional began.

The bridal party consisted of five bridesmaids dressed in dark teal satin gowns, and five groomsmen attired in top hat and tails.

The ceremonies, conducted by Judge Tom Scott, started on time and ended on time.

According to Monie Applegate, Mall manager, everything went off without a hitch.

"I am very relieved," Applegate said.

Applegate, and the merchants involved, decided to have the wedding as part of the bridal fair to increase the interest in the fair.

The usual grand finale of the fair is a fashion show. But the interest dropped, so they decided to have something new, creative and different.

"Isn't this a perfect way to spend Valentine's Day," she said.

Some people may not have agreed with having an actual wedding in a public place, but Applegate said it was great advertisement for the businesses.

"The stores may not be stockpiled with new customers right away, but the long term effect will be great," Applegate said.

The bridal fair will continue to be an annual event, but an actual wedding may not be the grand finale.

"You never know, this is leap year, we may do it again in four years," Applegate said.

Video helps promote university

By KRISTIN MONTGOMERY
Staff Writer

"Everything from computers to buffaloes," is how Kevin Campbell describes the new video, which is to be used to promote Fort Hays State to alumni and high school seniors.

President Edward Hammond asked Jack Heather, director of CCTV, to produce this 15 minute promotional video.

Campbell wrote the script to the video, with Mike Leikem, assistant professor of communication, shooting and producing it. Lance Lippert, an announcer for KKAN in Phillipsburg, did the audio.

"It took a great deal of time. We had to shoot all kinds of raw footage and then we had to edit that stuff together," Heather said.

The video emphasizes the high technology and the electronic environment of the college. It also emphasizes tradition within a small community.

"I think it was very well done, considering that it was developed to be shown to two completely different groups: alumni and prospecting students," Heather said.

"It is a unique video for us. We have never done anything of this magnitude before," Campbell said.

Brad Dawson, instructor of music, listens to a senior recital last night in Malloy Hall.

Dawson practices what he teaches

Fort Hays State is one of five stops for the small jazz band, Changes.

Brad Dawson, sixth-year instructor of music at FHSU, will play trumpet for the group, sponsored by MUAB and the Kansas Touring Arts Program.

Raised in Russell, Dawson attributes his interest in jazz music to his home town high school.

"They had a good, strong jazz program at the time," he said.

In college he pursued his interest, and after graduating from FHSU in 1978 with a degree in music education, Dawson then attended North Texas State in Denton, where he received a master's degree and taught trumpet as a graduate assistant.

"I chose NTSU because it was the second largest music school in the United States," he said.

"There were 1,800 music majors when I went there. It was highly respected for its jazz program."

Before returning to Hays, Dawson played trumpet with the 2 o'clock Lab Band.

While in Hays, however, he met Tom Fowler, Wichita State jazz professor, and formed a jazz quintet. They played at the Backdoor almost ten years ago.

"We tend to gravitate towards those with the same interests. That is how I became such good friends with Tom Fowler."

"It will be like a ten year reunion," Dawson said, referring to the upcoming Changes concert.

Besides music, Dawson enjoys hunting and fishing. "Anything outdoors to get away from everyday life. It is my escape."

"Fortunately I have an unusual job situation. I enjoy my music and look forward to work. It is better than the nine-to-five grind," Dawson said.

"Doing as well as I possibly can is important to me. I want to blend in to the group and sound good."

Explaining why he chose education over going professional, he said that professional musicians are limited to what music they can play, and when.

"I can pick and choose when and where I play. I can be involved with several different projects at once."

He concedes that graduate school showed him the difference. In ten years, Dawson hopes to still be involved with music.

"I enjoy myself. That is what counts."

The Changes concert will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Backdoor.

Grad student wants to bring Times from New York to Hays in same day

By JUNO OGLE
Staff Writer

Same-day delivery of the New York Times may soon be available on the Fort Hays State campus.

If 20 subscriptions can be sold, then the Times will be available to the public at campus locations for 25 cents a copy.

The special offer for students and faculty is the result of the Current Political Issues course, Alan Arwine, political science graduate assistant, said.

"We were looking at newspapers and magazines for CPI because we were dissatisfied with Time," Arwine said.

Previously, students enrolled in CPI were required to subscribe to the weekly news magazine.

However, many students complained about problems with their subscription and billing.

"Then we came across this deal," Arwine said.

Through the Times' Newspaper in Education department, subscriptions for both faculty and students are available at discount prices.

A subscription beginning Feb. 22 and running through the rest of the semester will cost $12.50.

Not only will the price be cheaper than a regular subscription, but service will be faster, Arwine said.

Without this special offer, delivery on the Times is delayed about three days and costs about 40 cents per issue.

Under the offer, same-day copies will be delivered by 2:30 p.m. to various campus locations.

Deliveries will be made to the Political Science office in Rarick Hall 355, the University Bookstore in the Memorial Union and the residence halls.

Those interested in the subscription offer need to contact Arwine in the Political Science office by 2 p.m. next Thursday.

Delivery will begin the following Monday, Feb. 22.

Subscribers will need to provide their name, address, phone number and the campus location they would like their paper delivered to.

Only the weekday editions of the Times are offered with the discount price. The Sunday edition is also available, but at the regular price.

Although the Times is intended for use in the CPI class, anyone may subscribe, Arwine said.

Rockers to raise money for Cystic Fibrosis

SCEC ready for rock-a-thon

By MADELINE HOLLER
Staff Writer

The Fort Hays State Student Council for Exceptional Children invites all experienced chair rockers to participate in the third annual rock-a-thon, Feb. 26-27, at the Holiday Inn, N. Highway 183.

The money raised by the rockers will be donated for the research and treatment of cystic fibrosis, a metabolic disorder that causes the body not to absorb food properly.

Teams interested in rocking for 24 hours (from 6 to 6 p.m.) must pick up a pledge sheet in the special education office and collect pledges.

After the rock-a-thon, the pledges will be multiplied by the number of hours the team rocked.

Team members will then be required to collect these pledges after the competition.

Ninia Smith, associate professor in special education and adviser of the rock-a-thon, said participating in the rock-a-thon is even easier than one might think.

"Team members are allowed to come and go as they please," she said.

"We only ask that they bring their own rocking chairs and keep them rocking."

Teams consist of six to eight people, and Smith said they usually get about eight to 10 teams to participate.

"We would like to get more teams to come out this year and raise more money," she said.

"In the past years, we've raised between $400 and $500, but Cystic Fibrosis is still an area in which there's a lot of research needed," she said.

Smith said students rarely become bored at the rock-a-thon because there is always something happening.

"We give out all kinds of food and run videos the entire time."

"The teams participating have a good time and know they've done something for a worthy cause," Smith said.

The bright and robust musical "Purlie" opened in New York at the Broadway Theatre on March 15, 1970 and captured the city during its two year run. Based on the play "Purlie Victorious" by Ossie Davis, "Purlie" is an uproarious cartoon of the Deep South in the days just before Civil Rights. All this is told in scenes brimming with real life wisdom and calm humor. Equally expressive is the show's rousing score. From its bold, rocking gospel or infectious soft shoe to the brassy belt of Lutebel's "I Got Love" the music of "Purlie" raises the rafters with supercharged delight.

FHSU nets pair of CSIC victories

By MIKE MARZOLF
Sports Editor

Sometimes good teams must just win.

According to Head Coach Bill Morse, the Tigers did just that.

Especially on Saturday night. The Tigers came away with a pair of wins, 97-75 over Missouri Southern State College, and 67-50 over Wayne State College on Saturday.

"Taking care of business happens a lot with teams that rated highly," coach Morse said. "Over the years, when we have been a national power and you play a team that really isn't that good it kind of becomes a job."

"You just go through the motions of the ball game, and that is what we did. I'm not happy with that, but it does happen when you don't respect your opponents and you play kind of lackadaisical."

The Tigers stumbled at the beginning of the contest Saturday, as Wayne built a 13-8 lead, and it wasn't until the 9:42 mark that FHSU took the lead, at 19-17.

They extended that lead to 11, 33-22, by intermission.

According to Morse, Wayne State did the right things to confuse the Tigers.

"I wasn't real pleased with our effort, yet Wayne state did all the things that it takes to upset us," Morse said. "They played changing presses and changing defenses, something we hadn't seen all year long."

"They kept us confused on what they were going to do next. Yet, they ended with a 17-point lead, so we have to be happy with that, but I wasn't real happy with the things we did technically."

Throughout the second half, FHSU was never pressed, as the Wildcats were never able to get any closer than seven points the rest of the game.

The Tigers opened it up to double figures for good with 8:01 to play, after Ronnie Thompson made the score 55-44.

Thompson ended the game with 21 points to lead the Tigers in scoring.

"Ronnie is a great talent and a great player," Morse said. "He hasn't always played well for us. But, he is far superior to any player they have."

Mark Harris finished behind Thompson with 18, and Thomas Hardnett contributed 10.

Morse also complimented the play of Antoine Williamson.

"It was a real good practice session for Antoine," Morse said. "It was the first time he played here where he had to play against a changing press and defense."

"He did OK and was trying to do the right thing throughout the game."

Williamson finished the game with two points, but he also dished out three assists and got a steal in 37 minutes of action.

Thompson, Brett Butler and Mike Miller each grabbed six rebounds for the Tigers.

Mike McNamara and Bobby Parker each scored 14 points to lead the Wildcats.

The Tigers shot 50 percent for the game, compared to 41 percent for the Wildcats.

The previous night, FHSU won its second in a row, defeating the Griffons.

The Tigers used good balance scoring to move into sole possession of second place in the CSIC, after a FHSU win, combined with a Pittsburgh State victory over Emporia State, 74-73.

Men to play host to Marymount

By MIKE MARZOLF
Sports Editor

The 7:30 p.m. match-up tonight in Gross Memorial Coliseum between Marymount College and Fort Hays State will renew a rivalry between two of the most successful schools in the district in recent history.

The Spartans made numerous trips to the national tournament and finished as high as fourth place in the early 1970s.

By the end of the decade, Marymount was still a strong force, but in the 1980s the Spartans lost funding to their program and have not been the threat they once were.

FHSU, on the other hand, is still one of the powers, giving Marymount incentive in the upset attempt.

A week ago, the Spartans, 15-10, defeated Emporia State University 96-92, while the Hornets were at the third spot in Dunkel ratings.

That makes Head Coach Bill Morse a little uncertain about the potential of the Spartans team.

"They beat Emporia recently, and they are going to think they can come upset us," Morse said.

"We are a better ball club, but, again, we are going to have to come and play better than we did this weekend to win. I think our guys will rise to the occasion," Morse said.

The Spartans will bring little height with them into GMC, as they start three players under 6-0, with their tallest starter 6-6 forward, Lonnie Sanders.

Sanders, who scores 22 points and brings down 11 rebounds a game, was picked a tri-MVP in District 10 last year.

"They have Sanders, of course," Morse said. The kid was nominated for All-American, so we are going to have to do a good job on him."

The second leading scorer on the team is Joe Mansfield, a 5-10 junior guard.

Mansfield averages 18 points per game, and, along with 5-10 senior Todd Rhine, makes up a tough backcourt for the Tigers to defend.

"They have two good guards," Morse said. "One of them, Mansfield, is a real good penetrator, and the other (Rhine) is a nice shooter."

The third guard the Spartans will start is 5-10 freshman Dwayne Lawrence, who averages

7 points and leads the team with 3.5 assists per contest.

Lawrence averages 7 points, but leads the team with 3.5 assists per contest.

Rounding out the starters for Marymount will be 6-5 senior Rod Ward.

Ward is third on the team in scoring, 12 and second in rebounding, 8.

Ronnie Thompson will start at one forward for the 19-4 Tigers, leading the team with a 19.9 scoring average.

Thompson also leads the team in rebounds at 9.8.

Mark Harris is second on the team in scoring at 17.1. Harris leads the Tigers in assists with 4.6 per game.

Thomas Hardnett, 9.1 points and 6.2 rebounds, will start at center.

Antoine Williamson starts at point guard for the Tigers, averaging 6.8 points and 2.5 assists per contest.

The final starter will probably be Brett Butler, who averages 6.9 points per game.

Mike Miller, Reggie Kirk and Cedric Williams will come in off the bench, with the status of Shaun Manning's injured ankle still uncertain.

Johnson wins, four second in area

By HEATHER ANDERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The best way to describe Friday's wrestling tournament for the Fort Hays State wrestling team: second place.

The Tigers finished second in the NAIA Area Tournament in Kearney, Neb., to Kearney State College.

Individually, four FHSU grapplers finished second.

Although that qualifies a wrestler for the national tournament, it wasn't good enough for the Tigers to capture the tournament, as Kearney State crowned three individual champions and captured three second-place finishes.

"We had a good tournament," Head Coach Wayne Petterson said.

"We were off to a good start, but we let down in the finals, where we should put out the strongest performance. However, we're making adjustments so we'll be more successful at nationals."

Billy Johnson was the only area champion for FHSU, defeating Johnny Hagan of Kearney State 7-5 to take the 118 pound weight class.

Greg Pfannenstiel, West Harding, Cliff Noce and Greg Dixon captured second place in the 126, 134, 142 and 150-pound classes.

Pfannenstiel was defeated 12-7 in the finals by Richard Ping of Northwestern State.

Ping was later voted outstanding wrestler of the tournament.

Harding lost the final match with another wrestler from Northwestern, 8-7.

"There were some matches we thought we should have won," Petterson said.

"Pfannenstiel, Harding and Noce all lost in real close matches, but I think we also learned from them so we'll be ready for the next time we meet those people."

Noce turned in his best finish of the year, losing the 142-pound championship, 8-6, to a Chadron State foe.

Noce will have a chance to challenge that decision in Sunday's double dual with Chadron and Central State University of Oklahoma.

Greg Dixon turned in the next second place finish, losing 12-4 to Mike Pogue of KSC.

Placing third and fourth for the Tigers was the brother combination of Mark and Mike Nansel.

Mark finished fourth in the 158 class, losing twice to Tachovsky of Westmar College in the first round and the consolation finals.

Mike captured third place in the 177-pound class with a technical fall over Steve Garhart of Black Hills State.

Gaven Ludlow finished with a third place effort at 190 pounds after a 9-7 decision over John Nozicka of Chadron State.

The area tournament was the last chance for national qualification this season.

Johnson, Pfannenstiel, Harding, Noce, Dixon and Mike Nansel all qualified for nationals.

Vernon James qualified for nationals as well at 142 pounds.

Noce and James are both entered in the tournament, but only one may compete for FHSU.

The squad will be at home Sunday for competition against Chadron State and Central State of Oklahoma.

"We're going to run this like a round robin meet. In other words, we won't wrestle the teams head to head, but as individuals. No one will know the team scores until it's over."

"We're trying to make it as close as the national tournament as possible. If we do well against those teams, our kids will know they can do well against about anyone," Petterson said.

Women nab Kearney State title

By TIM PARKS
Staff Writer

The Fort Hays State women's indoor track squad took first place at the Kearney State Invitational on Saturday, but their head coach wasn't able to witness it.

While the women were defeating their opposition in Kearney, Neb., Head Coach Jim Krob and seven members of the men's team were competing in the Oklahoma Classic in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The rest of the Tiger men's team went with the women to Kearney State College and the split-squad brought home third place in the six-team meet.

"Coach (Wayne) Sager took them up there, and he was pretty happy when they got home. Apparently things went pretty well," Krob said.

Apparently they did, as six different Tigers and both men's and women's mile relay teams took first.

"I can't say too much about this trip because I wasn't there, but most of our girls were, and they did a good job."

Kari Williams won first place in the high jump, placed second in the 222-yard hurdles and finished third in the 60-meter hurdles.

Karen Borgstedt placed second in the 60-meter hurdles, first in the 220-yard hurdles, and was a member of the two-mile relay, which also came in first.

Other members of the winning relay were Jodi Atchison, Rosa Esparsa and Jana Howard.

Mariya Gwaltney came in first in the 440-yard dash, third in the 60-meter dash and was a member of the second-place mile relay squad.

Also performing in the relay were Linda Ragland, Sally Black and Kristin Amerine.

Chrissy Sitts placed first in the two-mile run and third in the mile run.

Rounding out the top women performers were Esparsa, who finished second in the 1,000-meter run, Rita Grady, who took second in the 300-meter dash.

Patty Smelser placed third in the two-mile run and Amerine finished third in the 600-meter run.

Krob was also pleased with the men who competed at Kearney State.

"We had three firsts for the guys, who had probably seven of the top people gone -- down at the meet at Oklahoma State."

"Brian Waters had a good meet for us. Steve Heft had a good meet, and Rick Walker had a good meet. Walker ran the mile in 4:28, which is real good," Krob said.

Walker finished first in the mile run, third in the 1,000-meter run and helped the men to a first place finish in the two-mile relay.

Jim Welker, Rob Long and Rick Staats were the other members of the relay.

Welker also placed third in the 880-yard run.

Tim's twin brother, Tom, received first place in the two-mile run.

Waters finished third in the long jump and Heft ran a 53.2 in the men's mile relay, which finished fifth.

Terry Higgins placed third in the high jump.

At the meet in Oklahoma, the Tigers competed with 95 other colleges, junior colleges and universities.

"The junior college, college division was separate from the university, and there were probably 50 schools in our division," Krob said.

The squad's two-mile relay team may have qualified for the NAIA national meet with its performance at the Oklahoma meet.

The relay finished second in its division with a time of 7:49.9.

Ruben Esparsa, Mike Filley, Don Brunzell and Ramon Lopez made up the team.

Brunzell ran a 1:59.9 in the 800-meter run and a 1:55.5 in the relay.

Jon Haselhorst placed third in the 60-meter high hurdles. Larry Wood came in seventh in the mile run.

Intramural sports competition will continue at 4:30 p.m. Feb. 17 in Cunningham 121 with women's basketball.

Entries are due at time of play.

Sunday will mark the intramural-recreational track meet, beginning at 7 p.m. Feb. 21 in Gross Memorial Coliseum.

An open racquetball tournament will take place Feb. 26, 27 and 28.

Entries are due Feb. 20.

The tournament is open to students, non-students, faculty and staff. Everyone is encouraged to play.

STATE

Washburn University kept up its winning ways this weekend, beating Pittsburg State 78-60 in CSIC action.

Rich Hamilton led the Ichabods with 23 points. Rich Greene led Pittsburg State with 18.

The Oklahoma Sooners took possession of first place in the Big Eight Saturday when they beat Kansas State 112-95.

Mitch Richmond scored a career-high 41 points in the loss, which dropped K-State to 6-2 in the Big Eight.

Danny Manning scored 39 points for a season high as the Kansas Jayhawks won their third consecutive contest of the season, 82-72, against Iowa State.

Manning also turned in season highs with six steals and seven assists.

NATIONAL

The most recent meeting in the L.A. Lakers-Boston Celtics rivalry saw the Lakers defeat the Celtics 115-106.

Byron Scott scored 38 points, a career high, to lead the Lakers.

The winner of the Laker-Celtic match-up in Los Angeles the last two years has gone on to win the NBA Championship each of those seasons.

The Kansas City Royals finalized one-year contracts with outfielder Gary Thurman and reliever Jerry Don Gleaton.

Thurman finished as the Royals' starting leftfielder last year after batting .293 in Class AAA ball in Omaha, Neb.

Gleaton also transfers from Omaha, earning a 4.26 run average.

The Chicago Cubs traded third baseman Keith Moreland to the San Diego Padres Saturday for relief pitcher Richard "Goose" Lonsage.

Missouri upset No. 7 University of Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday by an 81-79 score.

Derrick Chivous led the Tigers with 26 points to hand the Kansas Rebels their fourth loss at home in the last five years.

Yvonne Hinojosa shows poise and balance on the balance beam in her routine last Saturday afternoon during the Fort Hays State triangular with Adams State and Chadron State.

Gymnasts garner school record

By TED HARBIN
Staff Writer

The Fort Hays State gymnastics squad scored a new school record of 138.2 points in the triangular with Adams State College and Chadron State University.

"The girls are becoming cleaner and more consistent in their routines," Head Coach Tawnya Augustine said.

Adams State took second place with a 130.9, and Chadron finished in third with a 72.9.

"Chadron didn't come here with a full team, so they weren't expecting to win the team competition," Augustine said.

Chadron was unable to place in the top three of any of the competitions.

Three people placed in every event for the Tigers, with two Adams State competitors tying FHSU placers.

Adams State's Kassie Carter tied for third place with Carolanne Leslie on the uneven bars with a score of 8.45.

FHSU's Yvonne Hinojosa tied for second with Sherrice Strauss on the balance beam with a score of 8.35.

Hinojosa also placed third on the floor exercise with an 8.85, and second on the uneven bars with an 8.6.

She had a career best score in the all-around with a 34.5.

She took second behind Leslie, who scored a 35. That was Leslie's personal best score for this season.

Angie Ables placed third in the all-around with a 34.1.

"The only event that Angie had trouble on was the beam," Augustine said.

Ables took first place on both the vault and the uneven bars. She scored a 9.0 on the vault and an 8.8 on the bars. Both scores were personal bests for this season.

Wendy Boudreaux scored an 8.15 on the beam, good enough for third place.

Jacque Douglas won the floor exercise with a 9.1, her personal best for the year.

"We broke the floor exercise team score record with a 35.5. The old record was a 35.2," Augustine said.

Once again, Carolanne Leslie placed in every competition.

Besides winning the all-around and placing on the bars, she also placed third on the vault with an 8.5.

She won first place on the balance beam with an 8.8, and took second behind Douglas on the floor exercise with a 9.0. Both were personal bests.

Rena Lucke, who was questionable for the competition, placed second on the vault with an 8.8.

FHSU goes unbeaten

By TED HARBIN
Staff Writer

Annette Wiles had two big performances for the Fort Hays State Lady Tigers this past weekend.

Wiles, a 6-3 freshman, scored 23 points on Friday night to lead FHSU over Missouri Western State College, 66-59.

She made 10 of 16 from the field and shot 60 percent from the charity stripe.

"Annette was the CSIC player of the week after last week," Head Coach John Klein said.

He said that she played well offensively, almost scoring at will.

"Annette frustrated (Lisa) Hughes because she wasn't able to stop her."

"Offensively, Hughes is strong and she'll get her points, but she didn't impress me as a defensive player," Klein said.

Wiles also pulled down 11 rebounds, leading the team in that category as well.

Hughes was the big scorer for the Lady Griffons as she put in 25 points. She shot 24 times from the field, sinking 10.

Hughes led the Lady Griffons on the boards, as she came away with 11 rebounds.

"Our kids played well as a team on both defense and offense," Klein said.

Penny Fischer had 20 points and five rebounds.

Julie Kizzar, who got her first start of the season on Friday, scored 13 points. She also yanked down 10 boards, eight of those from the defensive end.

Besides Hughes, only one other Missouri Western player was in double figures.

Chris Awender scored 13, shooting 60 percent from outside of the three point line.

Wayne State College was the next victim for the Lady Tigers, as FHSU won 66-59 on Saturday.

Wiles once again had the hot hand for the Lady Tigers as she poured in 25 points. She made 10 of 17 from the field, and shot 100 percent from the line.

Wayne State came out early, establishing a zone press against FHSU, but Klein said that he put in their press breaking plays for the game.

"Wayne State did a real good job of switching their defenses."

"We really had to work hard offensively to get what we wanted," Klein said.

Fischer was able to get 14 rebounds. She also added 16 points and four assists.

"Penny stabilizes our girls on the court with her experience," Klein said.

Wayne State had four ladies in double figures, with center Dawnn Bern-Tucker leading the way with 17.

Point guard Michelle Blomberg made five three point shots for her 15, and Kris Smith scored 10 for the Lady Wildcats.

The Wildcats' leading scorer, Linda Schnitzler, who averaged 19 points per game, had 13 points.

FHSU shot 57 percent from the field in the first half, but then cooled off in the second half to 35 percent.

Tonight, the Lady Tiger will tangle with the Marymount College Lady Spartans at Gross Memorial Coliseum. This is the second meeting between the two District 10 foes.
